

North Miami Campus Professional Dress Expectations for Academic Classes

UPDATED NOV. 2011

As a student at Johnson & Wales University, it benefits you to treat every class day as an interview day so that you're always prepared to impress. With industry representatives on campus almost every day of the year, you will want to look sharp – your next boss may be the guest speaker in your class or an employer visiting campus to recruit employees.

- ◆ Students should remain in full professional dress while attending class and while within academic buildings between classes.
- ◆ In academic classes, culinary arts and baking & pastry arts students have the option of wearing full academic professional dress or their full chef's uniform, including all standards for grooming and accessories. Students who choose to wear the chef's uniform to academic classes do not need to bring their hat, apron, knife/pastry kit and side towel, see the Student Handbook online at www.jwu.edu/northmiami/studentlife.
- ◆ Students on co-ops or externships may have specific requirements and should contact their experiential education coordinator for more information.
- ◆ Failure to follow professional dress policies is a violation of the Student Code of Conduct and may result in disciplinary action.
- ◆ For information on reasonable accommodations, contact Student Success at 305-892-7046.
